ARMY OF THE POTOMAC.

Address of Governor Fairchild at the Bos-ton Reunion.

Governor Fairchild, of Wisconsin, delivered the annual address before the Grand Army of the Republic in Boston yesterday. He suggested that the society should publish a history of the organization of the Army of the Potomac, and with that view he devoted his address to such facts as had come under his view from the first call for troops until the army encountered its first reverse at Bull Run.

The Army of the Potomac, he said, was peculiarly deserving of praise, because it had done nobly in spite of the most discouraging reverses. Its mission from the first was to guard Washington; and its delays, countermarches, and defeats, which were the result of conflicting counsels, were the subject of universal criticism. Events crowded upon each other with such rapidity that the leaders scarcely knew what line of policy to follow, and many of the disasters were due to the lingering hope of peace. General Scott had been making preparations for defense. Colonet George H. Thomas (afterwards Major General) was placed in command of Georget wn); Captain Shiras (afterwards Commissary-General) in charge of the Treasury building; Captain Charles P. Stone (then colonel of militia) gnarded the President's house; Major McDowell (afterwards Major-General) had command of Capitol Hill from the railroad depot to the Navy Yard Commissary supplies were stored in and around the General Post Office; a body of troops was stationed at the Patent Office, in the basement of the Treasury building were stronge deposits of whole tiers of barrels of beans, pork, beef, and sacks of coffee, while its porticos bristled with cannon. The Capitol, under Major McDowell, was rapidly con verted into a fortress.

Capitol, under Major McDowell, was rapidly converted into a fortress.

On the 17th day of April there were with Major McDowell Captains McComb and Woodruff (engineer officers), two companies of militia, two hundred strong, composed of the stengentters and other workmen about the Capitol. Near the Navy Yard were four other companies, and near the railroad depot still another, all local militia.

The President's call for troops was gladly responded to. On the 19th of April, the anniversary of Lexington and Concord, the hearts of all loyal men in Washington were gladdened by the arrival of the 6th Massachusetts Regiment, six hundred and forty strong, commanded by Colonel Jones. On the afternoon of the 25th the 7th Regiment New York Militia, Colonel Lefferts, reached Washington. They Militia, Colonel Lefferts, reached Washington. They left New York city on the 18th, and communication left New York city on the 18th, and communication through Baltimore being interrupted, went from Philadelphia by way of Havre de Grace to Annapolis, where they joined the 6th Regiment Massachusetts Volunteers, Colonel Monroe, who were accompanied by their brigade commander, General Butier. So far as Washington was concerned, the crisis was now passed. The way being open, other troops came forward rapidly from all parts of the North, so that by the first of May a general feeling of security prevailed. The speaker then noted the result of the second ca'l for troops, detailing the events in regular order until on the 23d of May General Mansfield, commanding the department of Washington, had under him rather more than thirty thousand had under him rather more than thirty thousand

The immediate defensive occupation of the south bank of the Potomac was determined upon. A force of about thirteen thousand mea was assigned to this duty, and on the night of the 23d the movement took place in three columns. These troops took possession of Ariington Heights. At Long Bridge crossed at about the same hour a battalion of dis-trict militis, consisting of the National Rifles, trict militis, consisting of the National Rifles, Captain Smead, Zouave company, Captain Powell and Constitutional Guards, Captain Digges; and later the 7th, 12th, and 25th New York Voluntsers, under command of Major-General Sanford; and the 2d, 3d, and 4th New Jersey Volunteers, under Brigadier-General Runyen. The 7th New York was posted at Hughes' tavern, near the Virginia end of the bridge; the 2a New Jersey half a mile further on at Roach's Spring. The 12th and 25th New York, and the 3d and 4th New Jersey, and one company of cavalry moved to the right, up the river, and joined the troops, who had crossed above, at Arlington Heights The 1st Michigan, Colonel Wilcox, a detachment of United States cavalry, under Major Stoneman, and a section of Sherman's battery, Stoneman, and a section of Sherman's battery under Lieutenant Ransom, marched by way of Long Bridge to Alexandria. The fire Zouaves, commanded by Colonel Elisworth, went thitber at the same time by water. The whole of Sherman's battery crossed during the night, and Ricketts' battery marched over about noon on the 24th. Thus quietly was taken the first step into hostile territory. From this the speaker proceeded to give an account of the high hopes entertained for this army by the people of the North, which hastened the movements in July which resulted so disastrously.

In an eloquent oration he uttered the words of Divine truth, when, suddenly—horribile dictu!—a member affected with a bad cold commenced blowing his nose most violently. A terrible blowing it was, such as you never heard before in all your life, and such as the poor Doctor hopes never to hear again. It evidently swept the whole of the beautiful sermon out of his memory, and having no notes about him, he tried The Second Presbyterian Church being without a memory, and having no notes about him, he tried in vain to restore the broken connection; but he could discover neither end, and the frightened Doctor Brother McMullin, will you oblige me by repeat-

The laughter which followed now was indescriba-

It being finally restored, the Doctor called on Mr. McMullin to close the meeting with prayer, and all adjourned perfectly convinced that they had listened to one of the most remarkable sermons ever

THE BRIDE OF A DAY.

A Forced Marriage and its Consequences. A social sensation of rather singular nature has been developed in certain circles in the East End within the last few days. The incumstances of the case are far out of the usual order of things, and are the subject of much comment.

It seems that a well-known admirer of tortyfour years, after a brief but brilliant and ardent courtship, erranged the preliminaries for a matrimonial alliance with a young lady of twenthat the lady was regarded as a sort of an outthat the lady was regarded as a sort of an outsider in the case, and the tender part of the business was done for her by others. At any rate, on Thursday night of last week the intended parties set out in carriages for the church, where the twain were to have been made one flesh. On the way the young lady seemed disposed to avoid the hymeneal harness, and attempted to escape its gailing thraidom by leaping from the carriage window. This design, however, was frustrated, and the parties went to church and the fetters were forged. It went to church and the letters were lorged. It is said that an aunt of the young lady compelled her to utter the responses which made her the wife of the man she detested.

After the ceremony, the unequally yoked pair went to the house of the ancient bridegroom.

After the hour of the wedding matters seemed to have been slightly mixed. At any rate things were eminently unsatisfactory. The bride departed from the house of her liege lord at nearly dawn on Friday morning, and at last accounts was still missing. The bridegroom, however, seems to have had as much connubial felicity as his constitution could stand, and yesterday applied to the chancery court to dissolve the bonds. The case promises some rich developments.—Louisville Leager.

CHARLESTON, May 13.—In the Tax-payers' Convention last evening, Mr. George A. Trenholm, from the committee of eleven, submitted a lengthy report on the financial condition of the State. The grand total of the debt is fixed at $8,869,108; the sum total of unsold bonds is $1,500,000.

The report recommends that the Governor do not sell any more bonds at less than 80 per cent., and to proceed to New York to make the most economical arrangement for holding the above-mentioned $1,800,000 pledged as collateral, until 80 per cent. becomes attainable. The committee further recommends that, when redeemed, a portion of this sum be applied to the payment of the Fire Loan debt.

commends that, when redeemed, a portion of this sum be applied to the payment of the Fire Loan debt.

The report says that it is quite reasonable to expect, from this exhibition of the exact condition of the finances of the State, an immediate considerable advance and facilities for holding them off the market. It appears to the committee that the various issues and sums of bonds described have unquestionable legality and force as obligations of the State. The committee believe that retrenchment may be effected, and that it is the shortest avenue of escape from our financial difficulties. Less than $650,000 in gold will pay the interest and all expenses. The committee recommend the funded debt: $1,200,000 should defray the interest and all expenses. The committee recommend the funded debt of the State described in the Commissioners' report is a valid debt, and the honor and funds of the State are lawfully pledged for the payment thereof. Resolved, That a plan for the arrangement of the pundic debt suggested by the committee be recommended to the favorable consideration of the Governor.

Resolved, That in order to complete the examination of the accounts of the fiscal agent, the committee of cleven be authorized to send a sub-committee to New York with authorized to send a sub-committee to New York with authorized to send a sub-committee to New York with authority to ass'st by counsel, at home or in New York, in the proposed negotiations for the adjustment of the funded debt.

Resolved, That the Governor is hereby requested to review the various expenditures, and use his authority to avert extravagance, and substitute economy and accountability in every department; and that he be earnestly solicited to adopt $1,200,000 as the utmost limit of expenditure; also, that he exert his power to diminish the taxes in the same ratio.

The resolutions were unanimously adopted.

Sixth. That he would have the collection of the taxes next November postponed until the first of March, 1872, and not enforce the penalty for non-payment until that time.

Finally, the committee recommended the follow-

Finally, the committee recommended the following suggestions:—The Legislature ensuring the full payment of the royalty on the phosphates; the repeal of the acts granting exclusive franchises; a stop to be put to the drawing of money from the Treasury for alleged Legislative expenses, on the order of the Speaker of the House and President of the Senate; and that all appropriations and bills ought to specify the items under each general head; the reduction of the number of the State and county officers; the enactment of a law limiting each session of the Legislature to thirty days, repeal the law giving a salary of $2500 to the Adjutant-General; to give each public officer but one salary, and to abolish the commission to codify the laws.

The convention then resolved itself a committee of the whole, General Chesnut in the chair. Resointions of thanks to the presiding officer, and also to Governor Scott and State officers, were passed. The committee rose, and President Porter returned thanks, and said that he need not be ashamed of the convention.

The results would speak and appeal to the country, and if the Executive Committee continue to act in the same spirit and avoid Federal and State politics, and simply welcome to our ranks men who pi opose to do good, who advocate wholesome laws, just administration of the public funds, and honest officials, it will accomplish the great object of the people in peace.

New York Money and Stock Market.

FROM WASHINGTON.

Special Despatch to The Evening Telegraph.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee finished the consideration of the treaty to-day. They will report on it on Monday. No amendments have been made. It was stated in committee by Assistant Secretary of State Davis that the Britishers would not consent to amend the treaty as proposed by Sumner. If this was done they would allow it to fail.

The Investigation of the Premature Publication of the treaty commenced to day. Several employes of the Senate were called as witnesses. The New York Tribunes correspondent is summoned, but has not appeared. He will refuse to tell where he procured the treaty.

Senator Morton has prepared a speech in defense of the provisions of the treaty which is said to be very long. Trumbull and Schurz will oppose it. Summer seeks to amend it, and he will answer Morton. The debate may continue two weeks. After a reasonable amount of speech-making for and against the treaty, Mr. Cameron will endeavor to have a vote.

FINANCE AND COMMERCE.

RVENING TELEGRAPH OFFICE.

Saturday, May 13, 1871.

There is no material change in any of the prominent features of the money market to-day. The supply of available funds both at the banks and with private lenders is largely in excess of current wants, and it is difficult to place balances even at the low scale of rates now asked.

The gold market is quiet, and entirely devoid of speculative movement. All the sales recorded in New York this morning were made at 111%.

Government bonds are inactive but steady at an advance of ½ on the entire list.

Stocks were neglected but generally steady. Sales of City 6s at 103 for the new bonds.

In Reading Railroad there were small sales at 57; Pennsylvania at 61½@61½ and allotments
